

TRAINING FOCUS

Students at IBHS, LLC will focus largely on assessment. While there are opportunities for individual, group, family, and couples therapy, we understand that there is a need for more BIPOC testing psychologists and those able to conduct bilingual assessment. Currently, only 5% and 4% of all psychologists are Latinx or Black, respectively. Of the 5% of Latinx psychologist, only 5% of these can provide bilingual services. This results in the misdiagnosis and over pathologizing of BIPOC populations due to lack of culturally responsive and trauma informed assessment, in addition to implicit bias and the historical criminalization of mental health among BIPOC populations.

WHAT TO EXPECT

Specialized training will focus on trauma informed, bilingual, and culturally responsive neuropsychological assessment and evidenced based treatment, with a focus on liberation psychology and decolonizing mental health practices. Students will learn to develop culturally responsive interviewing and diagnostic skills, as well as testing batteries to assess for various neurodevelopmental and neuropsychological conditions. Students will additionally be exposed to a wide range of assessments including immigration, presurgical, international adoption, vocational rehabilitation, disability, psychoeducational, and court ordered evaluations.

CULTURAL COMPETENCE

Dr. Sandra León-Villa earned her Ph.D. in clinical psychology, as well as dual masters in mental health counseling and in psychology. Her dissertation research, training, and experience has focused on racial and ethnic differences in the experience of trauma, specifically sexual abuse. As a bilingual, first generation Mexican American individual, much of her work has involved working with Spanish-speaking populations and other communities of color. Dr. León-Villa's pre-doctoral and post-doctoral training focused on psychological and neuropsychological evaluations, respectively. Currently, Dr. Leon-Villa's work focuses on decolonizing mental health and the workspace, by providing trauma informed and culturally responsive services.

- EMDR (Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing)

Populations We Treat

As a predominantly BIPOC group practice, we focus on BIPOC mental health, thereby working with a very diverse population including children (ages 30 months and older) and adults. We provide a space to decolonize western mental health practices and incorporate spirituality and other Indigenous healing practices that our patients already practice as part of their healing journey.
